

RIM EXPRESS

A faster way to enrol vehicles in the Road Infrastructure Monitoring (RIM) application - when you need it quickly.

WHAT YOU GET WITH RIM EXPRESS

The Road Infrastructure Management (RIM) application allows the collection of road use data from vehicles at low cost. RIM Express does even more! It offers an easy way to meet short-term road requirements using telematics.

RIM Express gives transport operators a quick way to enrol eligible vehicles at short notice under an operating arrangement on an Australian or New Zealand road network.

The key benefits of RIM Express are:

- Easier access for transport operators – immediate, short-term access up to one month
- Flexibility – rapid monitoring compliance for short-term access
- BYO telematics device – transport operators can use existing telematics devices that collect position records
- Less red tape in meeting requirements – the service provider doesn't need to be already registered for the RIM application.

WHAT DO I NEED RIM EXPRESS FOR?

RIM Express provides an easy, quick way for transport operators to comply with telematics monitoring conditions in a permit or notice.

You can use RIM Express for emergency or a short-term operating arrangement, and where the service provider may not yet be registered by TCA to provide RIM application services.

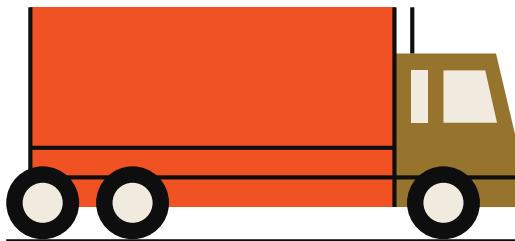

Examples include:

- Monitoring the journey of a vehicle across several Australian states to deliver emergency supplies
- Temporary use of a vehicle under a permit or notice.

HOW DOES RIM EXPRESS WORK?
